The concept of requiring VOIP to 'automatically identify the location" for each hand set is unneed. If someone wants 911 functions it will be offered in the market place. There is more than enough regulations for the internet and telco industry.